

Presentation to Year Twelve Cohort

End of Year English Exam - Preparation for Effective Revision

Let us be an external voice to help motivate your cohort as they head towards the end of year exam. With our experience in writing our own practice exam, delivering workshops on the texts and assessing student work, we can tailor a presentation (usually 90 minutes) that will provide great value for your students as they embark upon the end of their schooling.

Our presentation is equal parts insightful, informative and motivational as we work with your students on your texts and provide them with our direct and efficient revision strategies.

Launch into Year Twelve English

Let us help you get your cohort off to a flying start for the year with a motivational and interactive session which will set expectations and provide students with unique understandings about their texts. We will also include effective study plans and strategies for students that we have found to be the 'best value' for time when working with students in the past. Ultimately, we'll motivate students towards achieving their best in English for the year.

This presentation can take place at study retreats or at school, during or outside of school hours.

Key aspects:

- An expert voice on texts and students' responses to them. Students will be exposed to new ways of thinking about their texts and new strategies to get the most value out of their revision time.
- An external voice with years of experience in assessment to add weight to your team's message about the importance of revision.
- A great chance to communicate the 'switch on' to exam revision - it's earlier than students may think!
- Students will be given access to the presentation materials which will include some sample work and other useful resources.
