

How to best prepare for the GAT

Student performance in the GAT is an integral part of their VCE experience. With so much already happening in the classroom, investing the necessary time to prepare students for this important assessment can often be neglected. Let us take that task from your time poor English teaching team and provide an experienced external voice for your students so that they can fully understand the importance of doing their best in this essential assessment of their writing skills.

We can provide a sharp and engaging presentation for all students sitting the GAT, outlining strategies to most effectively meet the unique criteria of each task. A run down of how to approach both writing tasks, and the differences in the assessment and purpose of each section is a major part of this presentation.

Key Aspects:

- Performance on the GAT is vitally important for student ranking and in the case of derived exam scores.
- Our session covers both the writing tasks for Section A and B, allowing students time to not only see the expectations and receive advice about how to best attack them, but to also plan their own practice writing piece.
- Sessions are usually 90 minutes, but this can be adjusted on a school by school basis.
- Students will be given access to samples of effective and impressive work.
